

Standard Textile Introduces Let's TALK Luxury collection at International Hotel, Motel + Restaurant Show

Let's TALK Luxury—Luxury That Endures

New York City – November 13, 2011 – Standard Textile is introducing the TAL Collection for Standard Textile, a striking collection of jacquard ensembles for the bed and bath, at the International Hotel, Motel + Restaurant Show (IHMRs) at the Jacob Javits Center in New York. The show runs from November 13-15 and the Todd-Avery Collection will make its debut appearance at Standard Textile's booth, #3104.

The line is the result of an exciting collaboration with Todd-Avery Lenahan, an interior designer honored by Boutique Design Magazine as Designer of the Year in 2008 and a renowned force in hospitality design. With sights set on the world's most luxurious hotels, Lenahan has created a ground-breaking collection of striking jacquard ensembles for the bed and bath that combines Standard Textile's patented Centium Satin Sheeting® with his distinctly elevated aesthetic.

The unique combination of cutting-edge technology and luxurious detailing is a totally new concept for the hospitality market - providing Luxury that Endures™. Lenahan's designs are expertly crafted and delicately colored specifically for the world's finest hotels. The collection is then manufactured with the endurance and unparalleled durability of Standard Textile's Centium Core Technology® engineering, ensuring their long life and reduction of total ownership costs.

"With our newest collection, we wanted to create a luxury line that combined our innovative engineering with a high-design aesthetic," said Gary Heiman, President and CEO, Standard Textile. "Todd-Avery's designs epitomize the luxurious style that discerning guests desire, but deliver the high performance that the finest hoteliers seek."

Products in the Let's TALK Luxury line include bedding and bath linens.
